- 1 — Role cards start the game face down unless otherwise noted. Players may not show face down role cards at any time. When a player is eliminated, if that player's role card is not face up, reveal the role card.
- 2 — Face up Knights, Assassins, Bandits, and Renegades are teammates (not opponents) with others of the same role type. Face up Knights and Kings are also teammates.
- 3 — Players can only win/lose by the Victory/Defeat conditions on role cards:
 - Non-role abilities may not win the game or stop a player from winning the game. (i.e. abilities that say "win the game" or "can't win the game" have no effect.)
 - The first player to meet the Victory condition shown on their role card is the winner. If multiple players meet their Victory conditions simultaneously, they all share the win.
 - Victory conditions of "[role type] are eliminated" do not require you to be the player to eliminate the players with that role. Instead, if all players of that role type are no longer in the game, you win.
 - If at any time your Defeat condition is met, you are immediately eliminated from the game and you lose the game.
 - Roles with no Defeat condition shown are assumed to have the default Defeat condition: "You are eliminated."
 - It is possible for some roles to be eliminated and still win the game. (For example, when the King's Victory condition is met after the Knight has been eliminated, the Knight also wins.)
